Kwintes support patient independence with edison365ideas

Marlow, UK – today edison365, the award-winning business transformation platform, announced that Kwintes has successfully launched edison365ideas with the support of implementation partner JSR, to engage their employees and drive continual improvements for their patients.

Kwintes, based in the Netherlands, helps those with psychiatric or psychosocial problems, aiding them with living, working and learning to develop a life that is as independent as possible. Focusing particularly on how they can leverage digital tools to support their service-users, helping them reclaim their independence. They worked with implementation partner JSR, to launch edison365ideas and bring all 1,900 employees across multiple locations, into the innovation process to gather valuable ideas.

"Within our rebranded instance of edison365ideas, Innovation Lab, we continually investigate available digital tools that can help clients regain their independence. With the help of edison365ideas, all Kwintes employees can submit ideas around new tools and technologies to support our clients. Within the platform our colleagues can rate suggestions so that we can rapidly triage the best ideas before rolling them out to our users." Said Sonja Brouwer, Program Manager I&A, Kwintes

"Kwintes is passionate about providing the best level of care and support to their clients, and it's great to hear how they are optimizing existing innovation methods by leveraging employee ideas and gaining insight from those that work closely with their clients." Said, Ivan Lloyd, Chief Innovation Officer, edison365.
